Pastor Writes

It happened purely by accident, just yesterday, which was a Sunday.

My communion assistants at Our Savior's came forward at the same time as usual, when the offering is presented, and sat down in their usual spots and waited for the communion liturgy to begin, just like usual. So far, nothing at all out of the ordinary had happened. But things began to take an interesting turn when little David Burke, who had been helping his dad Dan collect the offering, was sent back to his seat to sit with his mom Cindy.

He began to cry when he reached the pew (unbeknownst to me, he had actually smacked his head on the baptismal font on his way to the pew, which was partially, if not entirely, the reason for his tears). But I thought he was protesting being sent back to his pew rather than staying with his dad to help with communion. This would fit the little guy's character, because not only does David help collect the offering, but he also helps ring the bell, and he also helps lead the children's sermon. Yes, lead.

So, before beginning the communion liturgy, I discretely whispered to Dan, "If David wants to stand next to you during communion, that is fine with me." Dan beckoned to David, who scurried to his side in five seconds flat, wiping his tears away. What I thought had been a clever maneuver on my part in keeping the peace during communion turned out, in fact, to be much, much more.

It became an incarnational/sacramental experience.

(Two big words, separated only by a slash. Let me explain.)

You well know by now that little children are welcome to come forward for communion. They may receive a blessing if they wish, but most reach out their hands to receive the bread. Each little outstretched hand gets a piece of bread, and I say the words, "With this bread, remember that Jesus loves you." In this way, the little ones participate in the sacrament, even if only by way of "practicing." It is meaningful to them, and to me.

Even so, when I give them their bread, I usually only bend slightly so as to look them in the eye; I look down at them, they look up at me. But yesterday, with little David standing between myself and his dad, the little ones had someone their size to look at. Twice, there was even a little high-five. Several times, there were smiles passed between the little ones, as they came up and encountered one of their own, someone just like them standing up there....someone they could relate to...someone their own size who could look them straight in the eye, them not looking up, no one looking down at them.

I found myself glancing down at these interactions with increasing curiosity and joy. This is why Jesus came to live among us instead is just staying up in heaven. He came to our earth to become one of us, so that we could experience the holy in terms we could understand. This is God's word incarnate—his love all wrapped up in flesh just like ours, one who looks just like us. And his is the flesh we eat in the sacrament of Holy Communion, the flesh of Jesus, who came to earth and became human, just like us.

But up until yesterday, I could never figure out a way to really explain that to little ones, because it's a pretty heady concept. What words to use to explain the incarnation of Jesus Christ and the real presence of his body in Holy Communion? Maybe there are no words. Maybe the best explanation is simply a presence. Little eyes meeting little eyes, little hands high-fiving little hands, little feet, the same size, little fingers putting bread into little mouths... little ones not only practicing for a future communion, but actually experiencing the holy in their own way, wordlessly, simply by being represented during the distribution, by seeing one of their own as part of the sacred mix up front... of coming up and discovering one who is just like me.

What started out as a simple attempt to stop David from crying turned out to be a monumental realization that what we say in this place, we really mean. All people are welcome to come forward when the body and blood of Jesus are distributed. Jesus came to this earth to love all people, grown-ups and little ones alike, and David's three-year-old body standing right next to me during communion drove that point home like never before.

Basket Raffle Update

Due to other obligations I have this summer, I won't be able to chair the Basket Raffle for Calamus Days. I am putting this in the newsletter early to let everyone know, hoping someone will step forward and take this project on. It has been one of the highlights of Calamus Days, a real out reach for our church. We as a congregation have been able to raise thousands of dollars that have been either put back into our community, or used for projects outside our community. If anyone has any questions that I can answer about chairing this project, please feel free to give me a call.

Your friend in Christ,

Dear Church friends,

I am once again participating in the Avon Walk for Breast Cancer, taking place this June 1-2 through the streets of Chicago. This weekend-long event consists of walking 26 miles on Saturday, spending the night in a tent, and walking 13 miles on Sunday. As a participant in the walk, I have committed to raise a minimum of $1,800. The walk will involve major physical training and significant fundraising, and am asking for your help.

Since 1992, the Avon Foundation Breast Cancer Crusade has raised and awarded more than $525 million dollars to the cause. The money is used for education, clinical care, early detection programs and support services, with a special focus on the underserved. Much of the donations to the Chicago Avon Walk are distributed locally. This effort needs to continue until the cause and prevention can be found.

Please consider donating to my Avon Walk fundraising efforts. Even a sponsorship at $1/mile will help go towards medical research into the possible causes, prevention, treatment and cure of breast cancer; clinical care for breast cancer patients; support services for patients and their families; educational seminars; and early detection programs. You can make a donation online by visiting my Avon Walk page at www.avonwalk.org/goto/skyedobb or you can send me a check made out to "Avon Walk for Breast Cancer". The funds go directly to the Avon Foundation where they will be put to very good use. There is no donation too small, every bit counts, and of course, all donations are tax deductible.

Visit www.avonwalk.org for more information or if you have any questions, fundraising ideas, or words of encouragement, call/email me at (563) 275-8078 or skyedobb@gmail.com.

Thank you very much for your support.

Parish Photo Directory

The Calamus Lutheran Parish has been blessed with a growing and active membership. In order to provide all members with a means of identifying and contacting each other, Faith and Our Savior's Churches are preparing to update the Parish Directory.

You may submit a photo you own or have your photo taken after worship services at either church on February 24th or March 3rd. The informal photos will be taken by a volunteer, Shane Glover. You may reserve a time for a photo session by writing your name on the Reserve a Photo Session sheet on the clipboard at the respective church. These photos will only be used for the directory and will not be offered for sale or purchase. The sole purpose is to gather photos of all members and update contact information. Photos and contact information will be printed in the directory and may be posted on the Parish website. By providing a photo and sharing your contact information, you are allowing the Parish to include the photo and contact information in the Parish directory and Parish website. Please only submit photos to which you have the copyright and are allowed to freely reproduce.

The following Contact Information will be collected when your photo is taken. If you are submitting your photo online or giving it to Dan Burke, please also provide the Contact Information. There will be a basket near the ushers' table at each church. Please attach the Contact Information to the photo and place in the basket.
